FIRST EDITION.

TWELVE O'CLOCK M.

FORTIETH CONGRESS.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, May 30, 1868.

SENATE.

A number of petitions were presented and referred.

A debate arose on the proposition by the Committee to print 10,000 instead of 15,000 copies of the Ross Brown report, which was finally adopted and a resolution for that purpose passed.

Mr MORRILL introduced a bill to amend the act concerning the registry of records and to so extend the warehousing system by establishing bonded warehouses, which was referred to Committee on Commerce.

The joint resolution to extend the time for the completion of the Northern Pacific Railroad was amended and passed.

The Senate held a short executive session, after which the Arkansas bill was taken up.

Mr. WILSON spoke in its favor, opposing any amendments to the House bill.

Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN called attention to the fact that the House bill requires of Arkansas to never place a restriction upon suffrage, thus forbidding her even establishing an educational qualification or changing the laws in regard to female suffrage. He dissented to such a theory, and also opposed Mr. Drake's amendment, arguing that States which have ratified the 14th amendment cannot recede therefrom, and that said amendment was already adopted.

The question being on Mr. Edmunds' amendment to recommit the bill to the Judiciary Committee, with instructions require Arkansas to first adopt the fourteenth amendment.

Mr. WILLIAMS opposed this as an admission that the fourteenth amendment was not adopted.

Mr. BUCKALEW was opposed to the bill, and particularly the clause exempting a certain amonnt of property from execution and disfranchising certain persons.

Mr. TRUMBULL replied briefly to the arguments of Messrs. Buckalew and Doolittle, and said he would vote for the House bill, in case Mr. Ferry's amendment, for which he would first vote, should be not rejected.

Mr. Edmunds' amendment was rejected without a division, and also, Mr. Ferry's amendment—yeas 20, nays 20.

The question recurred upon Mr. Drake's amendment already printed.

Mr. HENDERSON gave notice of an amendment forbidding discrimination against race or color, or denial to a class of participating in benefits of funds raised for educational purposes.

Mr. BUCKALEW closed by saying he believed such frauds had been committed that a proper return would show the people of Arkansas had rejected the Constitution.

Messrs. HARLAN, THAYER and POMEROY defended Mr. Bowen, charged by Mr. Buckalew with having been dismissed the Federal service for immoral conduct.

Mr. THAYER said he was dismissed without a hearing, and had been re-instated after an investigation by the War Department, and subsequently brevetted to Brigadier Generalship.

Mr. DOOLITTLE denied that the citizens of New Jersey, Ohio and Michigan, &c., could take the test oath prescribed in the bill. In regard to the denial of suffrage he argued that States were not self-governing or Republican in form, if they could not not make qualifications for their own voters.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

After an animated discussion, a resolution was adopted to place Mr. Woolley in the custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms, thereby relieving the Speaker from duty in the matter, subject to the order of the House, and that his counsel, family and physicians have free access to him.

During the proceedings a telegram, received yesterday, was read, it having been subsequently forwarded by Mr. Wooley to Mr. Butler, evidently, said Mr. Butler, for the purpose of insult, and provision was made that no communications shall be sent to the witness, except through his counsel. The following is the dispatch:

Metropolitan Hotel, N. Y., May 29th, 1868.—To C. W. WOOLLEY:—Citizen and sovereign, imprisoned, by the order of tyrants and cowards, in the Capitol of America, stand firm! Every true man in the land with blood in his veins will stand by you. It is the last feather which breaks the camel's back.

[Signed] GEORGE O. JONES.

The House went into Committee on the Indian appropriation bill and after discussion the section authorizing the issue of five per cent. bonds to the amount of $1,832,560 for the Chowtaw Indians, was struck out.

The Committee rose and the House passed the bill as amended.

Mr. SCHENCK gave notice he should on Monday, after the morning hour, move to go into Committee on the tax bill, and make an explanation of its features.

The SPEAKER presented a message from the President in relation to a Naval force at Hayti. Referred to Foreign Committee.

The House again went into Committee, when Mr. ASHLEY, of Ohio, introduced a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, providing a President shall not be eligible for re-election, abolishing the office of Vice President, and for a thorough revision of the mode of electing the President.

Mr. ASHLEY made a speech in support of his proposition and in opposition to the present system of voting by electers.

Mr. MORGAN spoke on general political matters, declaring the Republican party responsible for all the evils that curse the land. During his remarks a colloquy ensued between Mr. Morgan and Mr. Lawrence, of Ohio, as to what the Democratic party proposed to do if it got into power.

At the conclusion of Mr. Morgan's speech the Committee rose and the House adjourned.

The California Quicksilver Claim.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 28.—The Bulletin and Alta of this day pronounce the Garahan quicksilver land claim, now before Congress, a fraud, and show by receipts that it has been so declared by the United States Courts in California. The claim has, moreover, been moved from its original location, to cover the New Idea Quicksilver mines. The plea for the bill, on the ground of preventing quicksilver monopoly by the New Almedan Company, is met by stating that three or four other mines are now producing quicksilver, and it is estimated ten different furnaces will be in operation before the close of the present year.

THE UNION DEAD.

Decoration Ceremonies at Various Places.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

INDIANAPOLIS, May 30.—The ceremonies of decorating the graves of the soldiers and sailors buried in Crown Hill Cemetery, near this city, took place this afternoon under the auspices of the Grand Army of the Republic. Business was almost suspended and the citizens generally joined in the exercises. A procession, consisting of the members of the Grand Army of the Republic, Masonic and Odd Fellows organizations, executive and judicial State officers, Mayor and City Council and citizens generally, was formed at one o'clock and proceeded to the Cemetery. The exercises consisted of the reading of General Logan's order by the Adjutant General of the Department, address by Governor Conrad Baker, recitation of a poem written for the occasion and floral decoration of the graves by eighty orphan children of deceased soldiers, assisted by eighty young ladies.

LOUISVILLE, May 30.—At ten o'clock a procession, composed of soldiers and a large number of citizens, proceeded to Cave Hill Cemetery and there engaged in the solemn work of beautifully decorating the graves of the Union soldiers. Flags were displayed at half mast on the Custom House, Court House, City Hall and newspaper offices. During the march of the procession the bells of the Fire Department were tolled. At the Cemetery several eloquent orations were delivered.

MEMPHIS, May 30.—At the decoration at the National Cemetery it is estimated 5,000 persons were present, the Grand Army of the Republic, Union League and various colored societies participating. Flowers were strewn on the graves. Much disappointment was felt at the absence of Gov. Fletcher and Gen. Hurlbut, who were expected to be present. Several speeches were made, and a poem read, the exercises being interspersed with music. Nothing occurred to mar the harmony or decorum of the occasion.

CINCINNATI, May 30.—The ceremonies of decorating the graves of soldiers buried at Spring Grove Cemetery were conducted in the most imposing manner to-day. Flags were displayed at half mast in the city and along the routes leading to the Cemetery. Over 2600 people went out by special trains on the Hamilton and Dayton Railroad, and an equal number by private conveyances from all directions. The day was the most beautiful and pleasant of the season. Gen. H. L. Burnett, orator of the day, delivered an oration, eulogizing the patriotism of the soldiers who died for their country. The graves were then strewn with flowers of all kinds and colors, formed into almost every imaginable figure or device that affection could dictate to the mind as a suitable emblem to the departed heroes. Among the great number most noticeable were those of Gen. W. H. Lytle, General Robert McCook, Capt. Reintantz, of the 10th Ohio, and Col. Fred Jones, of the 22d Ohio regiments.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The graves of the Union dead at Arlington, Va., were decorated with flags and flowers this afternoon in the presence of a large number of spectators. Among those present were Generals Grant, Hancock, Howard and Granger, with General Logan, commander of the Grand Army of the Republic. Hon. J. A. Garfield delivered an address. The most impressive feature in the ceremonies was a procession of children of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphan Asylum.

WILMINGTON, Del., Ma 30.—The ceremony of decorating the soldiers' graves was duly observed this afternoon.

DAYTON, O., May 31.—The memorial ceremonies in honor of deceased soldiers yesterday were very impressive. The attendance was very large. Maj. Gen. Thos. J. Wood delivered an oration at the National Soldiers' Home and Chaplain Earnshaw, of the Soldiers' Home, at Woodland Cemetery. About one hundred soldiers are buried here.

Dr. Eliot, General Carl Schurz, and others, made addresses suitable to the occasion. About six hundred graves of rebel soldiers were also strewn with flowers and received the same attention as those of the federal troops.

Manifesto of General Marquez.

[By Telegraph to Pittsburgh Gazette.]

HAVANA, May 30.—General Marquez has issued a pamphlet manifesto, addressed to the Mexican people, defining his position. He states he has resolved to retire forever from public life and denies and disproves many allegations of cruelty attributed to him. He says the statement that he was the author of the Tacubao messacre is false, and claims to have acted always under superior orders. He concludes by expressing a wish to die in defense of Mexico against foreign invasion.

Important Treaty With the Osage Tribe—Alleged Murderers Surrendered to Justice.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

OSAGE COUNCIL GROUNDS, FIFTY MILES BELOW HUMBOLDT, May 27TH, VIA LAWRENCE, Ks., May 30.—An important treaty between the United States Government, represented by Hon. N. G. Taylor, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Colonel Thos. Murphy, Superintendent of Kansas Indians, Colonel A. G. Boon and Major G. C. Snow, and the Chiefs, councellors, warriors and head men of the Osage Nation, was to-day concluded and signed, by which the Osage Nation cede to the Government, and to Leavenworth, Lawrence and Galveston Railroad purchase, the remaining lands owned by the Osages in Kansas, including their trust lands, amounting in all to about 8,000,000 acres. By this cession the annuities of the Indians are largely increased and abundant provisions made for their settlement in their new home in the Indian territory, the establishment of schools, churches, a saw and grist mill, blacksmith shop, &c. Grave difficulties have recently occurred between the settlers and these Indians, and their early removal to Indian Territory is regarded as a most desirable consummation. The sale of the lands to the Galveston Railroad, upon the terms proposed, it is believed will insure the speedy construction of this important line of railway, connecting the Lakes and the Gulf, and add largely to the wealth of the settlements and commerce of the Western States.

The day before the arrival of the Commissioners at the council grounds a party of three hundred and forty-six Osage warriors started out on the war path to fight the Arrapahoes, to get revenge for a young man killed in one of their towns a few days previous by the Arrapahoes. After being out about six days, the war party returned and reported they had taken two scalps.

After the making and signing of the treaty, a young man by the name of Dunn, living on Walnut creek, Butler county, Kansas, arrived at the camp of the Commissioners and reported that on Sunday, the 16th, his brother and a partner, by name James Anderson, were killed by this war party, scalped, and their heads severed from their bodies. The Commissioners immediately called the Chiefs into council, and peremptorily demanded the surrender of the perpetrators of this deed. The next morning they brought two young men, and after about two hours parleying, amid the crying of squaws and the utmost excitement among the warriors and braves, the parties were given over to the Commissioners, who brought them to Ottawa, Kansas, and turned them over to United States Marshal Whiting, to be put on trial for the crime alleged to have been committed.

[From "Good Words."]

THE LITTLE FAIR SOUL.

A little fair soul that knew not sin
  Looked over the edge of Paradise,
And saw one striving to come in,
  With fear and tumult in his eyes.

"Oh, brother, is it you?" he cried,
  "Your face is as a breath from home.
Why do you stay so long outside?
  I am athirst for you to come.

Tell me first how our mother fares,
  And did she weep too much for me?"
"White are her cheeks and whiter her hairs,
  But not from gentle tears for thee!"

"Tell me where are our sisters gone?"
  "Alas! I left them weary and wan!"
"And tell me, is the baby grown?"
  "Alas! He will soon be a man!

Cannot you break the gathering days,
  And let the light of Death come through,
Ere his feet stumble in the maze,
  Crossed safely by so few, so few?
For like a cloud upon the sea
  Th t darkness till you find no shore,
So was the face of Life to me,
  Until I sank for evermore!
And like an army in the snow
  My days went past, a treacherous train,
Each silent when he struck his blow
  Until I lay among them, slain!"

"O brother, there was a path so clear!"
  "It might be—but I never sought!"
"O brother, there was a sword so near!"
  "It might be—but I never fought!"

"Yet, sweep this needless gloom aside,
  For you are come to the gate at last."
Then in despair that soul replied,
  "The gate is fast! The gate is fast!

"I cannot move the mighty weight,
  I cannot find the golden key,
But hosts of heaven around us wait,
  And none has ever said No to me.
Kind Saint, put by thy palm and scroll,
  And come unto the door for me!"

"Rest thee still, thou little fair soul,
  It is not mine to keep the key."
"Sweet angel, strike these doors apart!
  That outer air is dark and cold."
"Rest thee still, thou little pure heart,
  Not for my word will they unfold."

Up all the shining heights he prayed
  For that poor Shadow in the cold;
Still came the word, "Not ours to aid!
  We cannot make the doors unfold!"
But that poor shadow, still outside,
  Wrung all the sacred air with pain,
And all the souls went up and cried
  Where never cry was heard in vain.
No eyes beheld the pitying face,
  The answer none might understand,
But dimly through the silent space
  Was seen the stretching of a hand.

SECURITY AND COMFORT FOR THE TRAVELING COMMUNITY.

J. B. HARRIS' SAFETY FIRE JACKET,

Car Heater and Moderator,

For SMOKE AND HOT AIR FLUES, dispensing with the use of Stoves and Fires in or about the Passenger or Baggage Cars, with the attachment to graduate the heat to any temperature that may be desired without the possibility of firing the car or cars to which the Jacket may be attached.

Having obtained of the United States Letters Patent for a Safety Jacket which is warranted to resist the most intense heat that may be applied to it in the position and purpose for which it is intended. It is a sure protection from accidents by fire, originating from defective flues, or where iron pipes are used as conductors for smoke or heat. It is applicable to all piping that may become overheated, and is warranted to give perfect satisfaction where wood or other combustible material may be placed in close proximity thereto. I am now ready to apply my invention to stores, dwellings, factories, ships, steamboats, railroad cars, &c., wherever pipes as conductors are made dangerous by being overheated and security desired. I will sell, on application, rights to manufacture or to use the above invention; also, territorial rights, to such as may wish to engage in selling privileges, either by State or county.

Gold Closed at 139½@139⅝.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

NEW YORK, May 30, 1868.

MONEY AND GOLD.

Money closed very easy at 5@6 per cent. for call loans; the highest, however, at close was 4 per cent. Sterling quiet at 10@10½, closing nominal at 10⅛. Gold firm at 139½@139⅝. Shipments to-day $234,745. The heavy shipments for the week, $4,211,000, and Washington advices tended to keep prices very steady and active. Borrowing in demand for coin and it was scarcer than for some time past; loans were made at 10 per cent. for carrying, and flat to 1-16@1-32 per cent. per diem for borrowing.

RIVER NEWS.

Both rivers are again receding steadily at this point with ten and a half feet in the Monongahela, and eleven feet in the Allegheny. The weather was clear and pleasant yesterday and apparently settled.

The St. Marys, Capt. T. C. Sweeny, is the regular packet for Cincinnati to-day, leaving promptly at 5 p. m. She is a large and commodious side-wheeler, and besides being a good carrier, offers superior accommodations to passengers.

A telegram from St. Louis yesterday, brought the sad intelligence of the death of Capt. Alexander McGowan, which occurred at that place on Saturday. Capt. McGowan was one of our oldest steamboatmen, and had command of the Armenia at the time of his death. His remains, we presume, will be brought here for interment.

The Alice V. left Cincinnati for Pittsburgh on Friday. The Glendale and Kate Robinson, from St. Louis, are among the first boats due.

Quite a number of towboats have either already gone or will go out on the present rise with coal. Among others, we note the Coal City, Lion, N. J. Bigley, Tom Rees, Bengal Tiger, Stella, Grey Hound, Hercules, Whale and Horner.

The Horner, on the last rise, made the trip to Vicksburg and return in eleven days, said to have been the quickest trip euer made. She made the run from Vicksburgh to Louisville, a distance of about 1,050 miles in three days and twenty-three hours, notwithstanding she was deeply laden on leaving the former port.

The Argosy cleared for Cincinnati on Saturday with a good freight list, and a fair number of passengers.

The Grey Eagle arrived and departed for Parkersburg.

There is quite a lively competition existing at present between the Leonidas and Mary Davage for St. Louis freights. The former, we understand, is taking all the freight she can get at fifteen cents, while the Davage, it is said, has the greater part of her trip engaged at twenty-five. About the time the Davage gets out, Capt. Anawalt will be here with his Wild Duck barges to renew the contest. Shippers, we have no doubt, enjoy the fight hugely.

Thos. G. Gordon, of Gordon & Co., Parkersburg, has been appointed surveyor of Customs for the port of Parkersburg, the district extending from Marietta, Ohio, to Cattlesttsburg, Kentucky. Steamers running within the district will report at Parkersburg, instead of Wheeling, as heretofore, upon change of owners or papers.

Capt. Charles Holloway was presented by the officers of the Fleetwood with a splendid diamond pin valued at $200. The presentation took place while the boat was lying at Parkersburg.

The engineer of the Carrie Williams, who was so badly injured by the bursting of her steam-pipe, died at Florence, Indiana, on Wednesday.

We clip the following items from the Cincinnati Gazette, of Friday: The little stern-wheel Natrona, formerly an Allegheny river packet, arrived from above on Wednesday, and landed on the Kentucky side of the river. We understand that a couple of official gentlemen were in waiting for her to land on this side of the river, but the Captain not being desirous of making new acquaintances, passed on down the river.

The Emma No. 3, Pittsburgh to St. Louis, was momentarily expected last nigh.

The St. Marys left for Pittsburgh last evening with about 130 tuns, and had 100 tuns engaged above. She will be drawing all the water there is in the river between here and Pittsburgh.

A NEW ERA IN STEAM NAVIGATION.—A company has just been formed in New York city, and the necessary capital paid in, for the immediate construction of a new steamboat, 216 feet long, specially designed to run forty miles an hour. The boat is to be operated on the plan patented by Stephen I. Gold, a man of science, the inventor of many valuable improvements, among which are Gold's steam-heating devices, now very extensively used. His present invention consists in a new mode of applying steam power to the paddle wheels, by which he is enabled to make use of machinery having great effective force, with but little weight. This results in a reduction of the immersed cross section of the vessel, and a consequent increase of speed over ordinary boats. The new vessel is to be provided with 25-horse power for each square foot of immersed cross section. If this enormous force can be successfully applied to the paddle wheels, the vessel must move at the intended velocity, or something will break.

It has been ascertained that about 1-horse power per square foot of cross section will move a boat at the rate of 10 miles an hour; 4-horse, 29 miles; 16-horse, 40-miles; 64-horse, 80 miles, and so on. But up to the present time no engineering skill has been able to devise a method of augmenting the driving power without also increasing, proportionately, the area of the immersed cross section. Although we have many large and powerful boats, they do not travel much faster than the smaller craft.

The Bellevernon left Carondelet for Pittsburgh on Thursday, and the Kate Putnam was announced to leave the same day. The Kate Robinson left Cincinnati for Pittsburgh on Thursday.

We copy the following from the Saint Louis Dispatch: The restaurant system on western steamboats has been thoroughly tested on the Belle of Alton, and pronounced an entire success and a great saving to the boat. Capt. Bruner states that it is a saving of fully a thousand dollars a month, besides the satisfaction it gives to travelers. The boat rents the saloon and pays $25 a month board for officers, and $20 a month for the deck crew. Passengers procure their meals as in an eating house on shore, calling for what they want, and paying only for what they get. The Memphis Packet Company, we understand, will test the new system on one or two of their boats, and we doubt not that it will prove a saving of several thousand dollars a month. The cooking house and pantry are the most expensive departments of a boat, which boatmen have long complained of.

GREAT BOAT RACE.—Last night the great boat race of the season came off between the Harry Johnson, Jasper and Belle of Alton. The Johnson was the first to leave St. Louis; then the Jasper, and lastly the Belle started out about five hundred yards behind the Johnson. For the first six miles the Belle gained but little, owing to some defect in her machinery. This being remedied, she rapidly overhauled the Johnson and passed her under way, and then landed at Madison. Having discharged her Edwardsville freight, she again started out, passed the Johnson the second time, and landed at this levee two hundred yards ahead. The Jasper made no show in the race at all, having only reached the Point when the Belle landed. A large crowd was on the wharf to witness the race, and the triumph of the Belle was received with prolonged shouts of applause.—Alton Telegraph, 27th.

GOLD closed in New York yesterday at 139¼@139⅜.

THE Rev. Dr. DOUGLAS, notwithstanding the quality of his profession, has a vein of quiet humor in his composition, which is particularly fine. Last week, during the progress of the STUART case before the Synod, he met a harsh and proscriptive proposition by amendments applying the principle involved in other directions, and so adroitly as to demolish the original scheme. It was an admirable illustration of the plan of curing the bite with the hair of the dog. The Leader, unfortunately, is so prosaic it cannot appreciate a joke, unless it is as broad as a barn door; and hence it came solemnly to the conclusion that the Doctor was in sober earnest, and intended to insist that it was the duty of all Sabbatarians to make their journeys afoot between this city and Philadelphia, rather than ride on a week day in the cars of a company that does not cease labor on Sunday. The joke of the Doctor was good—the stupidity of the Leader is about equally as amusing.

IT WILL BE remembered that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company recently offered to complete the Chartiers Valley Railway, as rapidly as the work could be pushed, provided the people along the line would subscribe $300,000 to the stock and release the right of way; the estimated cost of the work to be done being between eight and nine hundred thousand dollars. For a few weeks, it seemed probable that this offer would be accepted; but we now learn that not more than half the stipulated amount of stock can be raised, many of the heaviest land-holders along the line refusing to put down even a dollar. Of course, whenever the road shall be completed, these individuals will be most clamorous of all, in demanding that it shall be run upon "the universal benevolence" principle, in order that they may reap the largest possible advantage at the expense of more enterprising and liberal citizens.

A final meeting of citizens interested has been called at Canonsburg, for Saturday next, and it is possible, but not probable that a different result may be reached.

THE Commercial, which assumed what it does not possess—a virtuous indignation—at our statement that an offer of sale of the Allegheny Valley Railroad had been made to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, has not quite impudence enough to deny our last specific statement as to the manner of the negotiation. That statement, therefore, may now be considered as undisputed.

In making that statement we did not impute unworthy motives to the President, Managers or other individuals having money invested in the Allegheny Valley Railroad. Far otherwise. The Managers of that trust are bound in law and in ethics to consult primarily the welfare of the stock and bond holders, no matter who may clamor, or what the pretext for the outcry may be. If they should wittingly fail to protect the interests of the stock and bond holders, whose servants they are, they would deserve the penitentiary, no matter how much bluster the Commercial and the like of it, might display in demanding cheap freights for outsiders.

The same rule holds good in respect to all other railway companies. In chartering these corporations, pains was taken to guard the public welfare. The Commonwealth has still large discretionary powers over them, which ought to be exercised, not arbitrarily, but with a view to the proper adjustment and balance of all the legitimate ends to be promoted.

The railway lines, centering in Pittsburgh, are worth to-day one hundred and fifty millions of dollars, at the lowest. It is just as important, both to individual and public good, that this railway interest should prosper, as that an equal amount of capital invested in commerce and manufacturing should be profitable. It is as absurd to affirm that this interest should be subordinated to, and crippled for, the benefit of manufactures and commerce, as it is to maintain that factories and stores should be established and sustained simply to afford remunerating business for railways.

Agriculture, manufactures, commerce and railways are the four great powers by which the country is advanced in wealth and comfort. These interests cannot be separated and held apart. Members of one body, there ought to be no schism between them; and there will and can be none when the relations of each to the others are distinctly understood and cheerfully recognized.

CONGRESSIONAL.

After the positive refusal of Gen. MOORHEAD to again permit his name to be used in connection with Congressional honors in this district, the active and leading Republican politicians bestirred themselves to select a fitting candidate for his successorship. Some eight or ten gentlemen of large legal ability and holding high rank in their profession, were importuned to permit their names to be used before the Congressional Convention, which assembles to-morrow, but they positively declined, assigning reasons therefor which at once relieved the pressure brought upon them to become candidates. Then also, formidable requisitions signed by our prominent citizens, and communications bringing out certain representative business gentlemen for the office, were made and published, but to no avail, and the canvass closed with only two worthy citizens in the field for the nomination—Messrs. HOWARD and NEGLEY. The issue was honorably made, the campaign fairly carried on and the fight, a square one on the relative merits of these gentlemen. It has resulted in an overwhelming majority for Maj. Gen. NEGLEY. The Republican voters have declared in an unmistakable way for him as a leader, and, doubtless, Mr. HOWARD and his many warm friends will be among the first to accept the situation and do yeoman service to advance the successful candidate's interests and those of the party. We do not anticipate that the strong struggle made for the nomination by the respective friends of these gentlemen will engender any feeling of bitterness or mar the harmony which should characterize the important campaign into which we have just entered. Let the Convention expeditiously discharge its duties and leave on record nothing that might be used by the common enemy to weaken our strength or destroy the solidity of our party ranks.

THE CONVENTIONS.

To-morrow there will assemble in this city three separate Conventions of Republican delegates who were selected on Saturday agreeably to the call of the County Executive Committee. 1. The Congressional Convention of the Twenty-second District. 2. The County Convention to nominate District Attorney and other officers. 3. The Congressional Convention of the Twenty-third District to select conferées to represent that portion of our county embraced in that district.

We do not wish to dictate anything to these bodies, which, so far as we can judge, are to be made up with representative and reliable members of the party who are deeply interested in its welfare, who know their duty and will not forget that on the wisdom and harmony of their action depends in a large measure the brilliancy of the victories in October and November. We would counsel unanimity, discretion and expedition in the discharge of duties, and trust the proceedings will be marked with good feeling and that the merest suspicion of chicanery cannot be entertained by those who will watch closest the every act of either of the bodies.

We suggest that more than usual care and judgment be exercised in the selection of the new County Executive Committee, for we are entering a campaign which will require much work, and the best material afforded should constitute that important auxilliary to glorious victory. Hitherto the Committee has been weakened by the constant addition made to its ranks of honorary members, if we can so call those who participate in the glory and keep their hands free of the work. It should number forty or fifty active, intelligent men, appointed by a joint committee in conference from the three conventions, and when once filled to the required measure, let no new addition be made to render it unwieldy and irresponsible. With such a Committee, keenly alive to the importance of the battle to be fought, Allegheny county will certainly keep good the promise made at Chicago in her behalf, and award GRANT and COLFAX a round majority of ten thousand.

BOTH of the Presbyterian General Assemblies have adopted the Plan of Réunion reported by the Joint Committee appointed last year. The vote in the New School body was taken on Friday. On the tenth section, upon which the vote was taken first, the count was, 213 to 37. The whole scheme was then carried unanimously. The vote in the Old School body was taken on Saturday, and stood 187 to 69. According to the established rule, the scheme has been sent to the lower judicatories for action. Considering the decisive votes in both the higher judicatories, by deputies appointed upon due notice that this important question was to be acted upon, it is fair to infer that the measure will be fully ratified as soon as the indispensable preliminaries can be gone through.

In most of the other Presbyterial denominations a considerable inclination to consolidate is evinced, insomuch that it is reasonable to anticipate a few years will suffice to bring them all together.

IT IS pretty generally conceded that Hon. JOHN COVODE will have no opposition for the Congressional nomination at the hands of the Republicans of the XXIst District. This reässerts that gentleman's popularity with the constituents he has so faithfully and ably represented in the National Assembly during the past five terms. As an active, zealous and effective working member no other stands higher than Mr. COVODE. What he lacks in scholastic brilliancy and finish is amply made up by his industry and practicability, his firm adherence and devotion to principle, his honor, honesty and large store of plain common sense and sound judgment. That he should be returned for the sixth time to Washington without any opposition in his own party would be only a fitting acknowledgment of his eminent services.

—Ex-Gov. Levi Lincoln died at Worcester, Mass., on Friday, aged eighty-six years.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE OLD WORLD IN ITS NEW FACE. Impressions of Europe in 1867-1868. By Henry W. Bellows. Vol. I. Published by Harper & Brothers, New York. For sale by Henry Miner, Pittsburgh.

The interest in works of this character depend upon the writer to a considerable extent, as the principal points of European travel have been presented to the public so frequently. Dr. Bellows has, however, wisely passed over much of the minute details of most writers, and has given us pen pictures of men and things, in a practical form. He has been a careful observer, and the result is an unusually satisfactory account of institutions, the social condition of the people, and the state of religion. Books of travel usually lack practical information. The crowning feature of this work is its practical features. The views of the doctor in religious matters are from a certain stand-point, and of the broad-liberal type, but they are nevertheless entitled to careful consideration. Dr. Bellows is a fine, graceful writer, and a Divine of much culture. The present volume includes travels in France, Holland, Germany and Switzerland. The volume is elegantly printed.

MARGARET: A story of Life in a Prairie Home. By Lyndon. Published by Charles Scribner & Co., New York.

This is a work of decided merit in many respects, especially for its elevated tone. Portions of it appeared in an influential religious weekly, which has been extensively read. Unlike too many works of this character, this one teaches moral principles of a healthy cast, and in it is told how that the refining influence of religion made life on the prairie all that could be desired in a home. The volume will likely have a wide sale on the score of merit alone.

SKETCH OF THE OFFICIAL LIFE OF JOHN. A. ANDREW, as Governor of Massachusetts. To which is added the Valedictory Address of Gov. Andrew. Published by Hurd & Houghton, New York. For sale by John W. Pittock, Pittsburgh.

The remarkable character of this statesmen is well known from his prominent course during the dark days of the rebellion His brilliant talents and official power were consecrated to the grand work of helping to subdue it. Previous to that event he was highly regarded in his own State for his manly virtues, and after his retirement from office his reputation was truly national. Brief as the sketch is, it will be found interesting and worthy of being extensively read. It contains a life-like picture of the Governor.

LILLEPUT LIVEE. Poems of Childhood, Child-fancy and Child-like moods. Published by Wyncoop & Sherwood, New York.

A dainty volume for the "wee folk," embellished with beautiful engravings. Small as the work is, it contains quite a number of pieces, and it cannot fail to interest the young, and is worthy of a place among the juvenile classics. Works of this kind are growing in favor, and we expect this one to find many buyers.

DIVINE PROVIDENCE. By Emanuel Swedenborg. From the original Latin, as edited by Dr. J. F. L. Tafel. Translated by R. Norman Foster. Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

The works of Swedenborg are of peculiar interest, in view of the large number of persons who are believers in his views, and because of the desire of the uninformed to know the cardinal principles upon which they are based. The translator has endeavored to represent the author's meaning, and in doing so at the same time to avoid the Latin idiom. No labor has been spared to make the translation clear and accurate. All the various phases of Divine Providence are presented, and the laws governing the great question are traced minutely. The terms and expressions will be familiar to those who have been accustomed to read works of this character. The publishers have printed the book in elegant style.

FARMING FOR BOYS. By the author of "Ten Acres Enough," with illustrations. Published by Ticknor & Fields, Boston.

This beautiful quarto is designed to present features of farming life for boys, under the guise of an attractive story. The writer shows very plainly its profitableness and at the same time ministers to the higher demands of nature. Portions of the work have appeared in several numbers of "The Young Folks," but most of the matter is new. Its handsome illustrations add to its attractions.

THE BUTTERFLY HUNTERS. By Helen S. Conant. With illustrations. Published by Ticknor & Fields, Boston.

This volume is much like "Farming for Boys," in its general appearance, and contains practical knowledge for the young. Its illustrations represent the butterfly family both as to size and general appearance, thus giving the reader an intelligent idea of this numerous winged tribe. The story is tenderly woven, and in a style that is as attractive as interesting.

EXPLORATION OF THE NILE TRIBUTARIES OF ABYSSINIA, &c. By S. W. Baker. Hartford: O. D. Case & Co.

For four thousand years the river Nile was a mystery. In its lower section, flowing through a desert, which its annual inundations transformed into a garden, inquiry was for ages baffled in endeavoring to ascertain by what fountains it was constantly fed, and from what sources it received the accessations that regularly caused its banks to be overtopped, and its plains to yield abundant harvests. Various conjectures were indulged and theories framed, and put aside, while still the grand problem remained unsolved.

During the last few years, SPEKE, GRANT, LIVINGSTONE, and BAKER, by independent explorations, have laid bare the secret that had been kept for forty centuries. They discovered in the equatorial districts of Central Africa, two vast Lakes, now known respectively as the Victoria and the Albert, and a lesser one known as the Tangrnyika, which are supplied during ten months of rain-fall with a volume that rolls steadily on its way, through arid sands and burning deserts, until it reaches the Delta of Lower Egypt. At first, it was thought that the discovery of these Lakes cleared up the whole mystery; but it was soon perceived that while these Lakes constituted reservoirs of sufficient magnitude to maintain the stream at its ordinary hight, they did not furnish enough water to cause the periodical inundation.

Farther explorations by those adventurers enabled them definitely to divide the Nile tributaries into two parts or systems, and to assign to each its due share in forming the stream, in perpetuating its peculiarities, and in ministering to the welfare of Egypt.

The Lakes of Central Africa, as stated, support the ordinary volume of the Nile; but the overflow is caused exclusively by steady and copious rains falling in Abyssinia. That country is drained by the Blue Nile and the Atbara, which fall into the Nile proper between latitudes fifteen and eighteen. From the middle of June until the first of September—the period of the Abyssinian rains—these affluents are so large as to impress beholders with a sense of marvellous grandeur. After the rains have subsided, the Blue Nile shrinks so as to be unnavigable, while the Atbara becomes perfectly dry. During this dry season in Abyssinia the Nile depends upon the equatorial Lakes, and the affluents of the White Nile. About the 20th of June, a grand rush of waters occurs in the Blue Nile and the Atbara, and Lower Egypt is submerged.

That deposit of mud by which the Egyptian Delta was formed and is constantly enriched, comes from the Abyssinian streams, and mainly from the Atbara, which means the Black River.

In this volume Sir S. W. Baker gives an account of an expedition to the sources of the Nile which he began in the spring of 1861, which occupied twelve months, and in which he was accompanied by his wife, who displayed throughout uncommon energy, fortitude and courage. It is written in an unpretending and pleasant style, gives an accurate idea of the nature of the country traversed, of the difficulties encountered, of the character and capabilities of the inhabitants, and of the geographical facts ascertained. It contains, also, a number of plates, which are well enough, but of no special value to individuals who have devoted considerable study to Africa and its productions.

PORTRAITS OF CELEBRATED WOMEN. By C. A. Sainte-Beuve. Translated from the French by H. W. Preston. Published by Roberts Brothers, Boston.

This volume is the fourth of the series of the "Lives of Exemplary Women," and yet each volume is distinct from another. The mere portraits of such celebrated women as Madame de Sèvigné, Madame de Lafayette, and Madame Roland, are sufficient to attract readers, because of the place they occupied in history; but their portraits are the result of patient and accurate studies in human nature, and couched in language of great beauty. The author, in presenting the elements of character of these representative women, has wrought out lessons worthy of emulation. The portraits are nine in number. The translation has been faithfully executed, and the publishers have brought out the work in fine style.

THE STORY OF THE WHITE-ROCK COVE. With Illustrations. Published by Henry Hoyt, Boston.

This is a work of touching interest, and is of a character that you can safely place in the hands of young persons. There is an elevated tone and religious sentiment running through its pages, that makes it worthy of commendation. Mr. Hoyt's publications are usually of this character. The elegant illustrations make the book still more attractive. The engravings are made in London by a new and neat process, and are destined to work an entire revolution in the art of wood engraving.

DIKES AND DITCHES; or Young America in Holland and Belgium. A story of Travel and Adventure. By Oliver Optic. Published by Lee & Shephard, Boston.

Dikes and Ditches, the fourth volume of the "Young America Abroad" series, is a continuation of the history of the Academy Ship and her consort in the waters of Holland and Belgium. There is beautifully woven with the sea-life, lessons on history and government, which are calculated to give valuable instruction, as well as novelty and interest. Underlying the maritime feature of the book, there are important practical truths and helps for young persons. Considerable information is imparted touching the dikes of Holland, the character of the people and history of the region. Mr. Adams, better known as "Oliver Optic," is a skillful writer and immensely popular among young people—yes, we say, everybody.

DOUBLY FALSE, By Ann S. Stevens, Author of "Fashion and Famine," &c., &c. Published by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia. For sale by W. A. Gildenfenny, Pittsburgh.

The author of this Novel is well known, and among the most popular writers in this country. Her numerous works have had a large sale, doubtless because of the practical style of her writing and the characters portrayed. Her story of "Fashion and Famine" was received by the public with great favor, and it is thought that "Doubly False" will be honored with the same attention. The life-like pictures of scenes and characters portrayed are presented in thrilling words.

EARNEST MALTRAVERS, or the Eleusinia. By Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton, Bart. Complete in one volume. Published by J. B. Lippincott & Co., Philadelphia.

This is one of the unrivaled volumes of "The Globe Edition," which we have commended, over and over again, for its excellencies, both as respects paper, printing and binding. Its portable form makes it also a admirable edition. The writings of Bulwer are so well known that nothing need be said in commendation of his works.

KING SHAM, and other atrocities in verse. By Laurence N. Greenleaf. Published by Hurd and Houghtan, New York. For sale by John W. Pittock, Pittsburgh.

Humorous pieces of the burlesque order, to a certain extent, specially those with "happy hits" at the failings of the age, are quite popular. Besides the rich and racy poem "of King Sham," a humorous history of the Pike's Peak excitement is given in verse, which cannot help exciting the risibles. Many of these pieces have appeared under the nom de plume of "Peter Pinever," and were copied extensively by the press.

THE NEVERS, and other stories. Published by Henry Hoyt, Boston.

A little volume full of big thoughts on the "Nevers," presenting wise words on matters that concern little people, who are forming character. It cannot help but do good.

HARPERS' SELECT NOVELS. "Jeaine's Quiet Life," by the author of "St. Olave's," is a tale of English country life. The characters are well drawn. The latest of the series "Poor Humanity" by the author of "Christie's Faith," is represented very highly, and is by far the best Mr. Robinson has written. His style is clear, bold and with purpose, making his character real and natural.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS., send us "A House to Let," by Charles Dickens, at the low price of 25 cents. Also, "Peveril of the Peak." by Sir Walter Scott, only 20 cents. Both for sale by W. A. Gildenfenny.

D. APPLETON & Co's. "Rob Roy," of the Waverly Novels, has been placed upon our table by Mr. Henry Miner, who can supply copies.

THE EVENING MAIL made its first appearance on Saturday evening, and met with large sale. It is a small, neatly printed and spicy newspaper and cannot fail to prosper if the succeeding numbers are kept up to the same standard of general excellence as the initial copy. We wish Mr. CAMPBELL abundant success in this, his latest piece of enterprise.

Amusements.

NEW OPERA HOUSE.—The season closed at this once popular temple of the legitimate drama on Saturday night, and the curtain dropped for a brief while in order to afford the very energetic management opportunity to visit New York, at this late day, to pick up a brilliant stock company for the coming season. We may be prejudiced, but if a first-class full company is brought here to grace the boards next season we will be agreeably disappointed, and will join our voices in lauding the "much abused management," that suffered the place to deterioate from a fair show to a second class place of resort, fit only for men (?) unaccompanied by ladies to attend. The people visited their wrath in good style, and a reform may be experienced next season, when we shall congratulate ourselves on the success of our efforts to elevate the drama in our city, and to place Managers in the light they look most natural in, rather than extol the good qualities which they are only imagined to possess.

THE LA RUE MINSTRELS.—To-night the ever popular and fully famous "La Rue Minstrels" will open for a brief season at the Opera House under the auspices of the gentlemanly D. C. La Rue himself, having leased the establishment for the brief season of two weeks. This is the largest as well as the best troupe of genuine artists and representative interpreters of the cork opera which has ever visited our city, and will doubtless meet with that generous encouragement which our people are ever willing to award true merit and ability. The programme will each night embrace the rarest gems of vocal and instrumental music, together with all the latest fun provoking negroalites.

PITTSBURGH THEATRE.—To-night at the "Old Drury" which has been drawing the crowds, of late, will be presented the side-splitting burlesque on "Undine," which is full of fun and puts Brougham's Pocahontas in the shade as far as mirth provoking hits are concerned. M'lle Fournous and Miss Frank Drew, continue to prove the great creatres of attraction and both are meeting with deserving success.

BURNELL'S MUSEUM.—A new invoice of curiosities will be placed on exhibition at this popular home museum, Franklin Hall, to-night.

ADVICE TO CONSUMPTIVES.

DR. KEYSER says: "You want air, not physic; you want pure air, not medicated air; you want plenty of nutrition, such as plenty of meat and bread will give; physic has no nutriment; gasping for air cannot cure you; monkey capers in a gymnasium cannot cure you; and stimulants cannot cure you. If you want to get well, go in for BEEF AND OUT-DOOR AIR."—Republic.

He says further: Don't put off the first symptoms. "A little leak may sink a great ship;" a small sore in the throat, lungs or liver will soon involve the whole body. How often do we see people put off for a year or two what in the beginning could have been remedied for a trifle. The Doctor's advice is, and always has been, attend to the first symptoms of disease. Do not let the constitution become a wreck before you begin to mend; if you do, ten to one there will be no remedy. There is a remedy for every disease if taken in time. A slight sore throat or cough may be removed with comparatively little trouble; but a constitution, sinking and breaking to pieces by allowing these little troubles to accumulate is not so easy. Dr. Keyser's mode of lung sounding is unique, and as thorough as it is unique. There is not a spot or space over the whole surface of the lungs that he does not sound and investigate, and by so doing is enabled to supply the appropriate remedy.

DR. KEYSER'S RESIDENT CONSULTING OFFICE FOR LUNG EXAMINATIONS AND TREATMENT OF CHRONIC DISEASES, No. 120 PENN STREET, from 9 A. M. UNTIL 3 P. M.

June 1st, 1868.

NATURE IS THE GREAT PHYSICIAN.

This is now admitted, by the medical profession, as a fundamental principle of healing science. It is wisely provided by the human economy that whenever anything is wrong in the physical system the natural forces of the body are brought to bear to expel the disease. The great aim, therefore, is to strengthen the natural powers. This has been kept in view by the skillful compounders of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, which operates to give fresh vitality to all the organs of the body. The effect of this medicine upon the stomach, the liver and the kidneys, is prompt and decisive. The patient, who is wise enough to quit drugging and try the BITTERS, soon feels as if he had taken a new lease of life, and as he continues the use of the article, he is overjoyed to find the streams of health coursing through his frame. It is prepared with great care, and its component parts are entirely vegetable. It is free from the objections so often urged against preparations of the kind. As a medical agent it has no equal, while its pleasing flavor and healthful effects have made it a general favorite. It is free from all properties calculated to impair the system, and its operations are at once mild, soothing and efficient. All who have used HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS attest its virtues and commend it to use. Even those who are in enjoyment of perfect health frequently have need to have recourse to tonics as preventives of disease. We are never too well armed against the assaults of "the ills that flesh is heir to." In health or sickness this tonic cannot be taken regularly without giving vitality and elasticity to the system.

600 MILES

OF THE

UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD

Are now finished and in operation. Sixty miles of track have been laid this spring, and the work along the whole line between the Atlantic and Pacific States is being pushed forward more rapidly than ever before. More than twenty thousand men are employed, and it is not impossible that the entire track, from Omaha to Sacramento, will be finished in 1869 instead of 1870. The means provided are ample, and all that energy, men and money can do to secure the completion of this

GREAT NATIONAL WORK,

At the earliest possible day, will be done.

The UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY receive:

I.—A GOVERNMENT GRANT of the right of way, and all necessary timber and other materials found along the line of its operations.

II.—A GOVERNMENT GRANT of 12,800 acres of land to the mile, taken in alternate sections on each side of its road. This is on absolute donation, and will be a source of large revenue in the future.

III.—A GOVERNMENT GRANT of United States Thirty-year Bonds, amounting to from $16,000 to $48,000 per mile, according to the difficulties to be surmounted on the various sections to be built. The Government takes a second mortgage as security, and it is expected that not only the interest, but the principal amount may be paid in services rendered by the Company in transporting troops, mails, &c. The interest is now much more than paid in this way, besides securing a great saving in time and money to the Government.

IV.—A GOVERNMENT GRANT of the right to issue its own FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS, to aid in building the road, to the same amount as the U. S. Bonds, issued for the same purpose, and no more. The Government permits the Trustees for the First Mortgage Bondholders to deliver the Bonds to the Company only as the road is completed, and after it has been examined by United States Commissioners and pronounced to be in all respects a first-class Railroad, laid with a heavy T rail, and completely supplied with depots, stations, turnouts, car-shops, locomotives, cars, &c.

V.—A CAPITAL STOCK SUBSCRIPTION from the stockholders, of which OVER EIGHT MILLION DOLLARS have been paid in upon the work already done, and which will be increased as the wants of the Company require.

VI.—NET CASH EARNINGS on its Way Business, that already amount to MORE THAN THE INTEREST on the First Mortgage Bonds. These earnings are no indication of the vast through business that must follow the opening of the line to the Pacific, but they certainly prove that upon such a property, costing nearly three times their amount, ARE SECURE BEYOND ANY CONTINGENCY.

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS

The Company have abundant means in their treasury, and make no appeal to the public to purchase their Bonds, as the daily subscriptions are entirely satisfactory; but they submit that, for entire security and liberal returns, there is certainly no better investment in the market.

The Union Pacific Bonds are for $1,000 each, and have coupons attached. They have thirty years to run, and bear annual interest, payable on the first days of January and July, at the Company's Office in the City of New York, at the rate of six per cent. in gold. The Principal is payable in gold at maturity. At the present rate of gold, these bonds pay an annual income on their cost of

NEARLY NINE PER CENT.,

AND IT IS BELIEVED THAT THEY WILL SOON BE AT A PREMIUM.

The Company reserve the right to advance the price of their bonds to a rate above par at any time, and will not fill any orders or receive any subscriptions on which the money has not been actually paid at the Company's office before the time of such advance.

Parties subscribing will remit the par value of the bonds and the accrued interest in currency at the rate of six per cent. per annum, from the date on which the last coupon was paid. Subscriptions will be received in Pittsburgh by

JAMES T. BRADY & Co., corner of Wood and Fourth Streets;
HART, CAUGHEY & Co., corner of Wood and Third Streets;
S. McCLEAN & CO., 75 Fourth Street;
PH. R. MERTZ, corner 5th and Wood Sts.;
ROBINSON BROS., 78 Fourth street;

AND IN NEW YORK

At the Company's Office, No. 20 Nassau Street, and by

JOHN J. CISCO & SON, Bankers, No. 59 Wall Street, and by the Company's advertised agents throughout the United States.

Remittances should be made in drafts or other funds par in New York, and the Bonds will be sent free of charge by return express. Parties subscribing through local agents, will look to them for their safe delivery.

A PAMPHLET AND MAP FOR 1868 has just been published by the Company, giving fuller information than is possible in an advertisement, respecting the Progress of the Work, the Resources of the Country traversed by the Road, the Means for Construction, and the Value of the Bonds, which will be sent free on application at the Company's offices, or to any of the advertised agents.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE,
SATURDAY, May 30, 1868.

Gold is unsettled, the market having touched 139⅛ and closed at 139¼, after being as high as 139⅞. To-day the feeling is rather firmer, especially for Saturday. Speculators are evidently afraid to sell short at present quotations, the stock in the market being considerably decreased and the future price subject to many contingencies; it would be very hazardous to sell now on the presumption of lower rates prevailing after July next. The future premium much depends on the shipments of bonds and specie to Europe and the prospects for the next crop, the latter being very promising. It is quite natural to look to an early and considerable decline in wheat.

In Government securities a quiet market has to be reported. Quotations seem to have reached the highest point, and money must become cheaper and bonds scarcer before any further advance can take place. The fact is, the dealings in bonds at present is confined to the money centres, where the low rate of interest is an inducement to invest. The interior has no surplus capital to invest at present prices, especially when good mortgages are sold at 12 per cent. per annum, which is equal to from 13 to 15 per cent. on the actual investment.

Money is easy or tight, the Five Twenties of 1862 have to come down at least two per cent to be equal to those of 1864 and 1865, and it is likely that Europeans will prefer those bonds that mature in July and January, being in harmony with the usual half yearly settlements of account customary all throughout the world. In regard to a Ten Forty or any other long five per cent. bond, it is entirely too soon to try any such scheme so long as the Government is not in a position to retire a part of its loans. The lottery plan pursued by European governments and much in favor there of cancelling State obligations by offering premiums on certain classes of securities, might, with advancage, be applied for our 6 per cent. debt at present held in Europe, and thus be funded in any 5, 4 or 4½ per cent. loan, making the interest payable in Europe.

Stocks are dull and lower, with but few exceptions.

Mining shares remain firm, and Corydon has advanced ¼ per cent. within two days. Express shares are dull and lower.

Closing quotations as received by Ph. R. Mertz, were as follows:

Gold, 139⅝; 1881 bonds, 115⅝; 1862 5-20s, 111½; 1864 do, 109⅝; 1865 do, 109⅝; Consols, 111¾; 10-40s, 105¼; 7-30s, 109.¼

Railroads—Cleveland & Pittsburgh, 87⅞; Fort Wayne, 115⅞; North Western, common 68⅝; North Western—preferred, 79⅜; New York Central, 133½; Erie, 70¼; Old Southern, 88½; Ohio & Mississippi, 30⅝; Merchants Union Express, 28; Western Union Telegraph, 38¼. Mining Shares—Corydon, 30; Quartz Hill, 100; Quicksilver, 30⅜; Smith & Parmalee, 3,10; Gregory, 4,80.

—As easy as money is in this market, being quoted at 5 to 6 per cent., the rate is still lower at New York, where the supply is abundant at from 4 to 6 per cent. Indeed, some of the reports are low as 3 per cent. The banks there, it is said, find some difficulty in using their balances at 5 per cent. on Government loans and other approved collateral. In this market there are some transactions as low as 5 per cent. on best collateral, but the banks find employment for most of their balances in discounting the business paper of their customers at 6 per cent. The large banking houses are allowing but 4 per cent. on deposits. Outside paper, notwithstanding the seeming abundance of money, does not command any greatly increased confidence, and is placed with considerable difficulty at high figures.—Phila. Ledger.

—Closing quotations received by James T. Brady & Co.:

Gold, 139⅝; U. S. 6's, 1881's, 115⅝; 5-20's, 1862, 111½; 5-20's, 1864, 109⅝; 5-20's, 1865, 109¾; 10-40's, 105⅝; 5-20's, January and July, '65, 111⅛; 5-20's, January and July, '67, 112; June 7-30's, 109¼; July 7-30's, 109¼; May Comp., 1865, 119,-40.

PITTSBURGH MARKETS.

OFIFCE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE,
SATURDAY, May 30, 1868.

The general markets have been very quiet during the past week, being almost entirely devoid of anything like a speculative feeling, notwithstanding money matters have become much easier. It is not likely that there will be any material improvement until after harvest, as farmers will be busily engaged in the meantime in looking after the crops, and there never was a more encouraging appearance for an abundant yield than at present. Our manufacturers have had a very fair business thus far this spring, but, as is always the case at this season of the year, it is now beginning to slack up a little. There still seems to be a very good demand for Iron, Nails and Glass, and our rolling mill and glass men seem to have about as many orders as they can fill. In Flour, Grain, Provisions and produce, generally, there is but little doing, and as the demand is restricted mainly to supplying the immediate wants of the local trade, the volume of business, in the aggregate, is light.

APPLE BUTTER—Is quiet but steady, with regular sales at 80c to $1 per gallon, as to quality.

APPLES—The supply of Green Apples is almost entirely exhausted, and the demand is light; we continue to quote at $5 to $7 per bbl.

DRIED FRUIT—Peaches, under the influence of increased arrivals, are dull and drooping—sales at 12 to 13c for prime halves. Apples dull and unchanged at 6½ to 7½c.

POTATOES — Continue dull; sale of 1 car load Prince Alberts and Peach Blows at $1,30; small sales in store at $1,35 to $1,40.

BUTTER—Is quiet and unchanged; we can report sales of prime to choice Roll at 18 to 20c. The arrivals are falling off materially.

EGGS—Scarce, and fresh packed sell readily at 22c.

PROVISIONS—There is no change in Bacon, either as regards demand or prices; 14 cents for Shoulders; 16c to 18c for Ribbed and Clear Sides; 19½ to 20½c for Plain and Canvassed Sugar Cured Hams. Lard, 19 to 19½c. Mess Pork, $29.

HAY—Baled Hay is less active but unchanged, as yet; sales at $18 to $24 and $25, for common to strictly prime. Wagon Hay may be quoted at $20 to $26.

GRAIN—There seems to be but little demand for Wheat aside from the mills, and millers are asking for concessions; we now quote Winter Red at $2,50 to $2,52. Oats appear to be a shade weaker, with sales reported on wharf at 83c—sale of 1 car to arrive at 83c, buyer furnishing sacks. Rye is dull with sales at $1,90 to $1,95. Corn is quiet and unchanged; sale of 1 car White at $1,05; prime Yellow may be quoted at $1,10. No Barley in market.

SALT—As is always the case at this season of the year, there is very little inquiry for Salt, and the market is dull and unchanged at $1,75 to $1,80 to the trade, and $2 for small lots in store.

SEEDS—Flaxseed is scarce and in demand at $2,50 to $2,55. No demand for Clover or Timothy.

HOMINY—Steady at $6,25 to $6,50.

FLOUR—The Flour market has been dull all week, though there has been no important change in prices. We quote at $10,75 to $11,50 for Spring Wheat; $12 to $12,50 for Winter Wheat; and $14 to $15 for fancy brands. Rye Flour is quoted at $10,25 to $10,50 for small lots in store.

PITTSBURGH PETROLEUM MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE,
SATURDAY, May 30, 1868.

CRUDE—The Crude market has been quiet and dull during the past week, and the sales have been comparatively light. To-day, however, there was a much firmer feeling apparently, and buyers took hold at figures which they refused to buy at yesterday—sales in three lots of 3,300 barrels, on spot, at 10½c. We now quote spot oil 10½ to 11c. The stock of spot oil is pretty well reduced, and what there is, is in the hands of a few dealers and speculators; as the river is again in fine navigable condition, we may look for large arrivals next week, as we have no doubt every effort will be made to get down all the oil ready to be moved, as navigation is very uncertain at this season of the year; we might have another bulk rise before low water sets in, and we might not, and it therefore becomes those who have oil ready to ship to take advantage of the present water. Oil City telegrams report a firmer market—$3,90 to $4 per bbl at that point.

REFINED—There was a much firmer feeling in the market for bonded oil today, especially for future deliveries, though as yet there is no material change in prices. We can report two lots of 500 each for the last half of August, at 30c; 500 each for August, September and October, last half of each month, at 31c; and 400 bbls prime light straw to white, for first half of June, at 27½c. Standard white may be quoted at 28c on spot; and 28¼ to 28½c for June; offers to buy July, August and September at 30c, and, as will be seen above, August, September and October sold at 31c. There seems to be a growing disposition among refiners not to sell beyond thirty or sixty days ahead, and this, we suppose, has something to do with the firmness which prevails in the market for future deliveries. The shipments were again large this week, notwithstanding we hear nothing further in regard to "corners;" it is probable, however, that a good many contracts will mature early in June, and our refiners are taking time by the forelock.

ARRIVALS—The arrivals of oil reported to-day were as follows:

Lockhart& Frew	800	Clark & Sumner.	1040
J. B. Bell	1360	Buffum &Kehew	160
Warden & Frew.	222	D. M. Edgerton.	800

Mark Twain on Shipboard.

We established a Jokers' Society, and fined every member who furnished an unbearably bad joke. We tried one man for his life (the Rajah of Borneo), for building a conundrum of unwarranted atrocity. Mr. Cohen disliked his trunk, and often spoke angrily of its small size. The conundrum touched upon this matter:

"Why is one of the passengers, or his trunk, like a certain geographical, algebraical, geometrical, technical term? Answer, Because he is a truncated cone (trunk-hated Cohen)."

We hung him. At dinner, one day, in the steamship Sacramento, on this side, I said something of my room-mate while he was carving a piece of veal. A member of the Society said: "Beware—remember the sign in the pilot-house: 'No conversation with the man at the wheel' (weal—veal." We hung him, also.

One night the first officer brought the tears to many eyes with a touching story of a shipmate of his, whose leg was bitten off by a shark. A young lady said, "Oh, how shocking!" A member of the Society said: "Indeed, it was —; it was very sharking." He was publicly executed.

A merchant from China told us a story of a tiger that ate up a Chinaman, and then ate up his bamboo cart. A member observed that it was the first time he had ever heard of a tiger dining a la carte. He is no more.

This nonsense reminds me of a circumstance. Once in Washington, during the winter, Riley, a fellow-correspondent, who staid in the same house with me, rushed into my room in scanty costume—it was past midnight—and said, "Great God, what can the matter be! What makes that awful smell?"

I said, "Calm yourself, Mr. Riley. There is no occasion for alarm. You smell about as usual."

But he said there was no joke about this matter—the house was full of smoke—he had heard dreadful screams—he recognized the odor of burning human flesh! We soon found that he was right. A poor old negro woman, a servant in the next house, had fallen on the stove and burned herself so badly that she soon died. It was a sad case, and at breakfast all spoke gloomily of the disaster, and felt low-spirited. The land-lady even cried, and that depressed us still more. She said:

"Oh, to think of such a fate! She was so good and so kind, and so faithful. She had worked hard and honestly in that family for twenty-eight long years, and now she is roasted to death—yes, roasted to a crisp, like so much beef."

In a grave voice, and without even the shadow of a smile, Riley said:

"Well done, good and faithful servant."

It sounded like a benediction, and the land-lady never perceived the joke, but I never came so near choking to death in my life.

St. George with the Gilt Off.

This pink of chivalry was born about the beginning of the fourth century, in, or shortly before the reign of the Great Constantine. His parents, who had emigrated from Cappadocia to Epiphania, in Cilicia, were employed in an humble branch of the cloth trade, and George himself was born, not in an enchanted castle, but in a fuller's shop in that town—a pleasant bower of half-cleaned togæ and small clothes of those days. Arrived at man's estate, George obtained an important contract to supply the imperial army with provisions.

So far as we can make out, this was the gallant George's only connection with the profession of arms. Instead of riding about on fiery steeds, performing miraculous feats of arms, slaying dragons, and delivering damsels, the fuller's son was engaged in delivering bacon to the imperial commissary; and very badly he performed that duty. His bacon was generally rancid and the quantity short. He was a true member of the army contractor race, one of the sort that Wellington would have liked to hang, to encourage the others. He made lots of money in the business.

For a long time the powerful friends whom his gift of flattery kept around protected him from the anger of the authorities and the fury of the soldiers. The former had to wink at short weight delivered by the favorite of the ministers, and the latter had to chew their rancid bacon and curse the rascally contractor beneath their breath. At length, however, there arrived a time when this sort of thing could be endured no longer. George had to flee. He narrowly escaped death at the hands of the soldiers, whose commons he had so shamefully robbed; and he was sought after, perhaps not very diligently, by the imperial officers of justice.

He managed to conceal both himself and his money, and to reappear at the proper time in a more distinguished and lucrative sphere. Thus the great George of England, the greatest knight of Christendom, the peerless champion of virtue and valor, retired from the military service of his country. What would those thousands of stout knights who clove Moslem crowns to the inspiring music of his name, and who sought death on the fields of Scotland in his honor, have said if you had told them that they were shouting themselves hoarse in the worship of a rascally bacon factor?—Chamber's Jour.

Some time ago a package containing $50,000 was stolen from a desk in the Canal Bank of New Orleans, in a most mysterious manner. On a careful examination of the premises, the detective discovered the mark of a small nail upon the edge of a railing, on which the thief must have placed his foot, and that he must have been a tall man. They concluded the nail was in the heel of the robber's boot, and that the wear of the leather had left the nail-head projecting so that it would mark whatever he would step upon. The officers became, thenceforth, the anxious observers of all boot heels, and after many days two of them happened into the City Hotel. Among the crowd a man was sitting, with one foot raised upon his knee, engaged in trying to bend or break off a projecting tack in the heel of his boot. A glance showed that he was tall enough, and forthwith the officers arrested him, charging him with the robbery. He confessed; said he went to the bank to inquire the rate of exchange, saw the package lying upon the desk, and, when the clerk turned his back for a moment, reached up, snatched the money and left. He had not ventured to use any of it, and the whole of it was recovered.

There seems to be no longer any doubt of the impending and almost total loss of the cotton crop. Mississippi and Louisiana, the two leading States for that staple, at least may be given up, and we fear all in time, as the army worm has never before appeared so early, and as the destruction of the crop has always been in proportion to the early appearance of the worm, we may safely infer that the loss of this year will exceed that of last. Heretofore, this scourge of the planter has never appeared before June, and often not until September. This year, May has found him in full force and on his resistless march.

The following clever bit of irony is from the London Spectator: "Sir Robert Napier, to whom the unexampled success of the Abyssinian expedition is mainly due, will, it is said, be offered a peerage—which he will probably be obliged to decline, having many children and slender fortune—will receive from Parliament the usual pension for three lives, and will succeed Sir W. Mansfield as Commander-in-Chief in India. He is the first engineer, indeed the first scientifically trained officer, ever appointed to independent command, and his success is considered. at the Horse Guards, almost a calamity. Imagine a man who has studied mathematics, and is unconnected with any great family, being acknowledged in the British army as a great General! We shall have commands distributed according to capacity next, and then where will the British Constitution be? The Horse Guards, however, does not venture to resist the nation openly, and accordingly Sir R. Napier, who has conquered a kingdom, has been, with marvellous promptitude, gazetted to the G. C. B.-ship, which he ought to have had, and would have had if he had been uneducated, after his China campaign."

Cutting the Hair.—There is a common but false notion that frequent cutting of the hair is favorable to its health and growth. Mothers thus often despoil their infants of their first silken locks, with the idea that the second hair will be much more rich and abundant. "This is an error. The most beautiful and abounding heads of hair I ever saw," saye Dr. Cazenave, "were those which the scissors had never touched." Mothers, not satisfied with trimming the hair of their children, often have it shaved or cut close to the scalp, when they find it losing some of its brilliancy or falling out. Except in certain rare cases of disease, the total sacrifice of the hair is unnecessary, and the second growth is never equal to the first. Getting the hair trimmed from time to time may be allowed as a matter of convenience, but it does not produce the benefit generally attributed to it.—Harpers' Monthly.

PENNA. RESERVE ASSOCIATION.

Second Annual Meeting—Report of the Board of Directors—Election of Officers—The Oration by General Todd—The Banquet.

The second annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Reserve Association, held at the Academy of Music, Liberty street, this city, Saturday, May 30th, was one of unusual interest, and will long be remembered by the members of that corps of Pennsylvania's bravest men, who had the pleasure of participating in it as one of the most pleasant incidents connected with the organization. The auditorium was beautifully and tastefully decorated with "star-spangled banners," presented to the different regiments of the corps by the State, as a mark of appreciation of their valuable services, and which had been borne by them triumphant through many a hard-fought battle. A number of larger flags were tastefully arranged in different portions of the building, and the Corps badge of the Division, a large blue Maltese cross with the battles in which the Reserves participated inscribed upon it, hung over the centre of the stage, the whole presenting a very pleasing and attractive appearance. The attendance was better than was expected, all the regiments of the Corps being represented but the Third, and Thirteenth (Bucktails).

BUSINESS SESSION.

At ten o'clock A. M. the meeting was called to order by the Chairman of the Association, ex-Governor Andrew G. Curtin, who in an appropriate manner acknowledged the honor conferred upon him by making him chairman of the organization.

John C, Harvey, Secretary then read the report of the Directors of the Association, which was in substance as follows:

The first annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Reserve Association was held in the city of Harrisburg, at ten o'clock on the morning of May 30th, 1867.

In the absence of the President and Vice President, Gen. S. W. Crawford was called to the chair. On account of the absence of a number of the members, it was on motion agreed to adjourn until 3 o'clock, and the Secretary was directed to post notices of the hour of meeting at the several hotels of the city. On re-assembling at three o'clock, the report of the Board of Directors, was read and approved, when a committee was appointed to wait upon the Governor and invite him to be present. The annual oration was delivered by General Wm. McCandless, of the Second Regiment. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for the meeting in Pittsburgh.

The roll of members numbered 158, embracing 73 officers and 85 enlisted men. It is made the duty of the Recording Secretary, by the constitution to prepare a roll of the corps to be kept at the Headquarters in Harrisburgh. The rolls have not yet been made, for the reason that the membership is small and it was deemed unavoidable to incur the expense of procuring the necessary books and blanks for the purpose until a larger number is enrolled on the books of the Association. There are now living in the several counties of the State some three thousand men who were connected with the Reserve corps, and a little effort on the part of the members of the Association, would place upon its records the names of most of these men. The Board of Directors urge, therefore that the members present at the meeting in Pittsburgh, will on their return home, procure and forward to the recording Secretary the names and membership fees of such of the former members of the corps as may be residing in their respective localities.

Since the organization of the Association there has been received from contributions and membership fees $76,50.

Bills for printing, stationery, advertising and postage amounting to $81,50, have been paid, leaving a balance of five dollars due the Treasure.

The Directors regret that this report must be closed with the announcemens of two deaths occurring during the year—Major General George A. McCall, division commander from the organization of the corps until the close of the Penninsular campaign, and Charles Bower of the Sixth regiment, who served the entire term.

Respectfully submitted.

On motion the report was received and adopted.

The Chairman stated that the next business in order was the Annual Oration, but as that had been deferred until the afternoon, the selection of a Board of Directors, three from each regiment, would be proceeded with, after which an election of officers would be held.

Colonel R. Riddle Roberts moved that a recess of ten minutes be allowed in order that the members might select the Directors.

The motion was agreed to, and at the expiration of that time the following were reported:

BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

First Regiment—Adjt. J. C. Harvey, Captain W. B. Stauffer, private Dellwyn Parker.

Second—Sergeant E. Donnelly, private Charles Divine, Sergeant A. W. K. Storrie.

Thirteenth—Not represnted.

Fourteenth—Sergeant J. K. McGinnis, Major F. Mecarte, Private C. B. Brocking.

Fifteenth—Lieut. Col. David Gardener. Captain Thos. Lucas, Adjutant Charles C. Townsend.

As the Third and Thirteenth Regiments were not represented, on motion of Gen. A. J. McCandless, it was resolved that the representatives from the regiments named hold over.

Col. Roberts moved that the next meeting of the Association be held at Lancaster.

Gen. Todd moved to amend by substituting West Chester.

The amendment was accepted and the motion adopted.

A member suggested that next year the 30th of May would fall on Sunday, and moved that the annual meeting be held on the first Tuesday following the 30th of May. The motion was adopted.

The Association then adjourned until the afternoon. The Board of Directors assembled immediately after the adjournment of the Association, and elected the following officers to serve for the ensuing year:

President—Hon. A. G. Curtin.
Vice President—Gen. Wm. McCandless.
Corresponding Secretary—Col. John H. Taggart.
Recording Secretaiy—Major John C. Harvey.
Treasurer—Col. John P. Taylor.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Association re-assembled at half-past one o'clock and was called to order by the Chairman, after which the Secretary read a communication from the committee appointed at the Convention of the different posts of the G. A. R. of this vicinity, to make arrangements for the celebration of the 30th of May, inviting the Association to participate with them in the services at the First Presbyterian Church, Wood street, Sunday evening. The communication was received and the invitation accepted.

A statue in miniature of Major General John F. Reynolds, who fell at Gettysburg, which is to be presented to the "Reynold's Monument Association," by the artist, Mr. Broome, was placed upon the stage, and referred to by Governor Curtin in a short address full of pathos and patriotism, in which he paid a high tribute to that gallant and brave soldier.

The Secretary then read the report of the Board of Directors, announcing the election of officers, which is published above, and also the election of Col. R. Biddle Roberts as orator.

Gen. Ent submitted a resolution authorizing the Secretary to employ a phonograph reporter to take down the proceedings of the Association, which was adopted.

On motion of Gen. Ent and Maj. John W. Duncan, several military men belonging to Pennsylvania regiments were elected honorary members of the Association.

THE ORATION.

At this point the chairman introduced Gen. Lemuel Todd, orator of the day, who spoke as follows:

I greet you, on this the anniversary of our association, with feelings enkindled and warmed by the memory of old friendship, and of common labors and sacrifices, and fondly indulge the hope, that this meeting will tend, not only to revive and strengthen existing ties of comradeship, but, also, to create new ones, that will gracefully carry into tradition and history the heroic life of our beloved Corps, our individual and personal recollections of our comrades' worth, nobleness and gallantry. The occasion is an interesting one, and awakens memory and hope. For, as we gather here from our distant homes and varied pursuits, and exchange the cordial greetings, so precious to old friends, a thousand vivid recollections, mingling their pleasant and sombre hues, start up in our hearts, and enliven into reality, the times in which we encamped, and bivouacked, and marched, and fought together, and hope, that most cunning and ideal of artists, catching inspiration from the enthusiasm of the hour, speeds into the distant future, laden with golden assurances of fond friendships, hereafter to be gratified and extended, and of cherished hopes to be hereafter realized and enjoyed. If, in recalling some of these memories, and if in performing the pious duty of honoring the Reserve Corps and celebrating the glories of its record, we may be obnoxious to the charge of egotism, who will shrink from the imputation, when he may justly claim identity with a Corps so noble in its origin, so illustrious in its career, and so powerful in its influence, with whose individual members he lived and loved and labored; and, if in so doing, the transfiguring halo, which is reflected from its burnished shield, should light up, beautify and ennoble the faces of the living, and glorify the memories of the dead, let the world rejoice, that we are worthy of the distinction, and freely pardon, in us, the indulgence of an ingenuous self-contentment and pride.

Pardon me, therefore, if avoiding a liberal discussion of some sound or philosophical problem, I prefer to dwell, for a short time, on several traits in the character of the Reserve Corps, which separate it from all other organizations and confer upon it honor and enduring praise.

A distinguishing feature in the character of the Corps was its unselfish patriotism. Shortly after the first cloud of war lowered, darkly and disastrously over Fort Sumter, and threatened to blot us from the roll of nations, from patriotic devotion to our fathers' flag, Minerva like, it sprung into existence, without the aid of machinery or the stimulus of proffered bounties: it was recruited from the best elements of our population, and representing its intelligence, respectability, wealth and enterprise; and displaying, by its sublime self-abnegation and zealous volunteer activity, the highest conception of the obligations of citizenship, the purest patriotism, and the most unselfish devotion to the public good. Almost without an exception its members on entering it made substantial sacrifices, which involved the loss of lucrative pursuits, the disruption of endearing relations, and the abandonment of comforts and luxuries which would have abundantly in themselves satisfied the desires and governed the conduct of more sordid natures. But animated and controlled by the enthusiasm of love and obedience to God and country, they closed their offices and counting houses, left the tools and implements of their trades to rest in their places, deserted the plough in the furrow, and the cattle in the fields, to arm and fight for the imperilled and insulted flag. No seductions of military glory inflamed their blood and stimulated in them an unholy ambition, no lust for power lured them by its subtle and mercenary enchantments, and no necessities, greedy for indulgence, urged them to the field. None of these considerations moved them or entered into their speculations. They become soldiers, neither for love of gain or glory, but through a holy and overmastering inspiration of duty, which bound them, regardless of consequences, to labor, to suffer, and, even to die, in defense of our free institutions and the sacred rights of humanity. [Cheers.] This noble enthusiasm for the right and true, this generous forgetfulness of self, and sublime contempt for privation, danger and death, are a crowning characteristic in the history and life of the Pennsylvania Reserves, and justifies the triumphant feeling of pride and exultation that rises up in our hearts, like a fountain of pure water, when we recall the motives and influences which animated and governed its individual members. [Applause.]

Another characteristic of the Reserves was its elevated esprit de corps, based on a cultured sense of individual honor and State pride, that manifested itself on all occasions, and strove by its heartiness and completeness to fulfill every condition demanded by loyalty and the highest ideal of soldierly conduct. Whilst each Regiment of the Corps preserved its own compact organization and labored to work out, in its own history and life, its conceptions of true manhood, and chivalrous duty, it, at the same time, cherished a fraternal feeling of regard for each of its associated regiments, and felt, almost, as keen an interest in their welfare and honor, as it did in its own. Thus, each one of them possessed a wider range of thought and action than belonged to isolated Pennsylvania regiments, and outstripped them in developing a higher and loftier sensibility and a more comprehensive relation of brotherhood. The close relations which existed between them as members of the same homogeneous corps, produced an identity of purpose and community of feeling, that caused everything, which affected the weal or woe of one of them, to send its thrill of delight or pang of sorrow throughout the entire body This harmony of feeling also led to constant and unreserved intercourse with each other and to the culivation of bonds of union and attachments that almost annihilated their several individualities. Thus united and concentrated their highest ambition and pride were developed in unfaltering devotion to the country's defense and the maintenance of a stainless record in the conduct and character of the Corps, that would reflect honor upon each member of it, illustrate the valor and patriotism of our grand old State, and fully and heroically discharge every duty which they owed to the government of their choice and affection.

Another striking feature in the history of the Reserves was the unbroken preservation of its union and identity throughout the vicissitudes of its active and trying career. From the beginning to the end there was no infusion of new men into its ranks to make up for losses occasioned by disease and battle. With thinned ranks it continued to perform the duty of a full Corps, exhibiting all the time a courage no danger could disturb—a resolution no difficulties could shake—and a love of country which grew in intensity as that country's danger became more imminent; and, when at last it closed its brilliant career, near to the spot where it had won its greatest laurels, there remained none in its devoted ranks who had not answered to the first roll call. On the day it was finally relieved from duty, how it contrasted with its former self, when, confident in strength, and buoyant in feeling, its serried and massive columns, with gleaming arms and waving colors and swelling music, first marched to the front! Ah! how many gaps were open in its lines—how many familiar faces were absent—how rent and torn its banners—how battle-stained and soiled its equipments—how bronzed and weather-beaten its veterans—how changed in everything except in the noble enthusiasm and knightly honor which had inflamed and guided them from the beginning! For three long, weary and bloody years the Reserves had carried their starry flags through fiery conflicts, and, at last, had brought them home luminous with the light of victory and of duty fully, faithfully and nobly performed. [Applause.] True, they were torn and ragged, and the brightness of color and gilding had faded from them: but, notwithstanding the envious rents made by rebel bullets and shell, they eloquently told the story of Drainesville, Mechanicsville, Gaines' Mills and Charles City Cross Roads, of Bull Run, South Mountain and Antietam, of Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and Gettysburg, of Mine Run and the series of terrific battles which were fought between the Rapidan and the James. But, alas, how many of them had sealed their devotion to country and truth, with their hearts' richest blood. How many of them had fallen on the battle line, close to their colors, with their faces to the foe? How many of them had perished in the hot pursuit, the fierce charge and daring assault? How many of them, ghastly with wounds, and scorched with fevers, had pined away and died in dreary hospitals? How many of them had wasted away, and been murdered by remorseless barbarism and fiendish cruelty in Southern prison pens? How many of them had been buried, in far off graves, away from kindred and home? And, how many of are them there lying shroudless and graveless, under the moaning pines and in the tangled recesses of dark ravines, utterly lost to recognition and love, until the Archangle's trumpet shall summon them to greet, in the better land, the thousands who had died for their country?

> "A debt we ne'er can pay,
> To them is justly due;
> And to the Nation's latest day,
> Our children's children still shall say,
> They died for me and you"—

But the chiefest glory of the Corps consists in the greatness and importance of its field service, and in the wide spread influence it exerted on public opinion. When called into existence by the prescience of the great war Governor of Pennsylvania, (applause,) its sphere of action was not designed to cover the wide area on which it was destined thereafter to act so distinguished a part, but was limited to the humble duty of State service and incidental auxiliary aid within its borders to the Federal forces. The mighty exigencies which were suddenly precipitated upon the country by the disastrous rout of ill-fated Bull Run imperiously changed this programme, and summoned to immediate and active national duty this providentially organized and disciplined force, which thenceforward was never absent from the front, or spared from the full share of the hardships, toil, danger and death of the war.

After having been summoned in hot haste from its camp of training to Washington, in expectation of immediate aggressive service, and after having been assigned to the army of the Potomac, the Corps submitted with illy concealed impatience to the weary routine of spade and shovel drill which then prevailed, and chafed with restless indignation through the long monotonous months which consigned it to inaction, in sight of the hated rebel flag. During all this period a profound anxiety pervaded the entire nation, and an intense longing was manifested for some decisive form of action for the suppression of the rebellion. As day after day passed bringing with it no change, the anxiety of the people deepened into gloomy forebodings, their hopes began to falter, and their confidence in the ultimate triumph of the Union cause began to give way. The sanguine expectations excited in their minds by the prodigious collection of war material, and the massing of great bodies of men in and around Washington, seemed about to perish in bitter disappointment and a conscious sense of inferiority, as shameful as it was humiliating, and their hearts were throbbing with the suspicion that our rulers and commanders had not the wisdom and courage demanded by the exigencies of the hour. With deep abasement they beheld the Capitol of the nation beleagered by insolent foes, and its approaches commanded by rebel cannon, and wandered and feared at the inexplicable spectacle of 200,000 soldiers, lavishly equipped and supplied, supinely lying under the shelter of their forts, and taking no initial step towards the fulfilment of their duty. (Whilst the South and West were reechoing with the victorious shouts of our conquering armies, who in defiance of such difficulties as paralyzed the Army of the Potomac, were gloriously asserting and maintaining the power and authority of the government, and scattering and dispersing the forces of the traitors.) Just at the moment, when this unhappy feeling was strongest and bordering on despair, the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps made its brilliant dash at Drainesville, and by that victory rolled back the cloud of despair which had settled upon the public heart, and let into its depths the light of renewed joy and confidence. The shout of the newly baptized conquerors, as it rolled on Virginia's desolate hills, was accepted by the people as the Evangel of a noble and more vigorous era, that would assert, by blows and activity, the loyal sentiment of the country in its steadfast determination, at all hazards and at the costliest price, unconditionally to maintain the Union in all its integrity, and remorselessly to subjugate the revolt against its authority. In value and practical utility, although in numbers and casualties far inferior to other battles of the war, none exceeded that of Drainesville. It was won at a most opportune and critical period, and effectually re-animated the nation, dispelled doubts and misgivings, revived and strengthened the desponding, and fired the enthusiasm of every patriot, and, at the same time, permanently fixed the status of the Corps as a reliable, resolute and courageous body of men, worthy of the eclat with which the victory was universally received. Subsequent events proved how worthily this confidence was bestowed and how truly it was merited.

When on the 10th of March, 1862, the order for a forward movement came, the corps gladly broke camp at Langley, and fully entered upon its perilous career. Happily, it did not dream of the difficulties to be encountered, nor doubt its power of endurance; and only partially learned the true nature of its future labors from the sufferings of that first march from Hunter's Mills to Alexandria, and its subsequent experience until it reached Falmouth. By that time the holiday features of camp life and drill routine had changed into plain, practical work, and the romance of soldering had hardened into stern reality; so that when the summons came to join McClelland on the Peninsula, the Corps clearly understood the magnitude and peril of the service on which it was about to enter. Yet no one who merely witnessed its embarkation for the voyage to the White House, could have imagined from the gay and reckless demeanor of its members, that the Corps was hastening to a carnival of disaster and blood, already prepared for it, and from which it emerged, crowned with honor, only to wonder why it had been compelled to participate in its horrors and suffer from its cruelties.

On reaching the Peninsula we all remember how rapidly the Corps was hurried to the front and right, and how quickly it was brought face to face with the foe. Scarcely was there time to note the character of the new surroundings, and recognize the indications of the impending conflict, before the thunderbolt of war burst in its might and fury. On the afternoon of the 26th of June the memorable and historic Seven Days fighting, before Richmond, began. I need not detail to you the part performed by the Reserve Corps in that bloody drama, nor describe how it fought and won the battle of Mechanicsville, how bravely it bore itself at Gaines' Mill, nor how resolutely and invincibly it barred the rebel advance at Charles City Cross Roads, until the trains of the Army of the Potomac were placed in safety, and the Army itself concentrated at Malvern Hill, and enabled to achieve a splendid triumph there. Nor need I trace it through its marchings and privations on the Peninsula, nor narrate how it zealously hurried back to Fredericksburg and Warrenton, the first of the Army of the Potomac to reach and succor Pope; how heroically it maintained its unsullied reputation at Bull Run; how grimly it hastened to confront the victorious rebel army in Maryland, and climbed the rugged heights of South Mountain, driving the foe before it at the point of the bayonet; how powerfully it contributed to the victory at Antietam, and how irresistably it penetrated farthest into the enemies lines at bloody Frederickburg, and the fearful losses its sublime and persistent valor entailed upon it there. Nor need I recall to mind the eager haste and stern vengeful purpose with which it marched to combat Lee, at Gettysburg; how opportuely it came to the rescue of our broken and fleeing lines; and how, by its daring and successful charge up Round Top, it restored the waning fortunes of the battle, and assured the victory which saved our native State from devastation and the Federal Government from ruin. Neither need I narrate what followed through the dreary winter, and the terrible sufferings experienced on the frozen borders of Mine Run; nor, yet, to follow it into the Wilderness and map out the closing series of sanguinary and wasting battles, which ended for the Corps at Bethsada Church. In every one of these the Reserve Corps proudly upheld its ancient reputation for dauntless courage, unwavering fidelity and devoted patriotism. All these acts are fresh in your memories, and are indelibly inscribed on the pages of history, and lovingly consecrated in the hearts of a grateful people. And now, as we look back over the Corps' three years arduous and eventful service, and comprehend the nobility and grandeur of its career and splendor of its record, and also estimate the magnitude of its influence and aid in maintaining the Union and conquering the rebellion, and behold the universal homage yielded to its name and fame, our hearts may well throb with exultant emotions of joy and pride in the reflection that we too belonged to the Pennsylvania Reserves.

If one were to inquire what good results the country has gathered from three years of war and expenditure of treasure and life, the answer is easy and satisfactory. Questions, vital to the existence and stability of the Government, have been definitely and permanently settled, and principles and institutions have been eliminated from our system, which were constant sources of irritation and discord, hindrance to national homogenity, and a humiliating reproach to our professed Republicanism. The problem of the durability and self-sustaining power of free, popular governments has been solved, and the truth demonstrated that they are stronger, more flexible, and vital than any other, and better adapted to meet and overcome internal troubles and convulsions. At the same time our national strength and resources have been so wonderously developed as to amaze the world by their magnitude, and create in the nations a profound respect for our power and genius, and a wholesome dread of our hostility. Serious and economical barriers, which, before, separated and allienated one section of the country from the other, and engendered rival animosities, fierce and turbulent in their manifestations, have been swept away by the flood of progress, and no longer hinder free and unrestrained intercommunication. Sectional pride and local prejudices are irretrievably broken and displaced by a national, cosmopolitan spirit, that joyfully secures and carries, throughout the entire area of our country, whatever tends to consolidate national unity, diversify and distribute industrial pursuits, promote harmony, and blend into happy and fraternal life the citizens of our now regenerated land. There is no longer a North and a South, in the old bitter signification of the words. Emigration and capital are pouring vitalizing currents of trade and activity into long neglected channels of enterprise, fusing and regenerating populations, whose voices will soon blend in harmony with other voices, all over our expanded territory, as they shout aloud a glad recognition of the sublime axiom, "All men are created equal, and are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." The people, having but one code of political ethics, and but one object of national affection, will irresistably consolidate into harmonious thought and action, and find under the 'georgeous emblems of the Republic,' whatever is 'of vital and most essential importance to public happiness.' Then man will find perfect freedom and full opportunity for self development, and unlimited exercise for the employment of his noblest powers and faculties, in the pursuit and acquisition of knowledge, virtue and happiness. Here, the principle of freedom will permanently abide and continue to grow in strength and beauty, until the whole earth is ravished with the sight of its loveliness, until all people are imbued with its spirit, and indoctrinated with its teachings, and wooed into the adoption of Republican institutions.

Under its new and more vigorous life, our country will start on a renewed career of usefulness and greatness, and furnish a boundless field for the expansion and regeneration of all true social, economical and governmental problems.

Here all labor will be honored, softened and ameliorated. Inventive genius will conquer matter and harness its lines to the chariot of industry and enterprise, and by subtle and sagacious contrivances exorcise the spirit of the primeval curse. Agriculture will revel in the richest and most varied products. Manufactures will make all our hills and valleys musical with the voices of happy and contented work, and commerce will crowd in our ports and inland rivers and lakes with richer cargoes than the far famed argosies of Vienna ever brought home to its merchant princes. Here all arts, all sciences, all literature, and all culture will combine their manifold agencies in their widest scope and power to make this, our country, the Canaan of the human race, and to introduce into it the reign of millenial perfection. Land of our birth and love, who is able to conceive of the vastness of thy future greatness and glory, or even faintly to picture the boundless results that must flow from thy example and influence!

> Oh, fair young mother,
> There's freedom at thy gates, and rest
> For earth's down-trodden and oppressed;
> A shelter for the hunted head,
> For the starved laborer toil and bread.
> Power at thy bounds
> Stops, and calls back his baffled hounds.
>
> On thy brow
> Shall sit a nobler grace than now,
> Thine eye with every coming hour
> Shall brighten, and thy form shall tower,
> Deepen the brightness of thy skies,
> The thronging years of glory rise,
> And as they fleet
> Drop strength and riches at thy feet.

THE BANQUET.

At the conclusion of the oration the Chairman announced that a banquet had been prepared at the instance of resident members of the Association, at Lafayette Hall, and that the Association would now form in procession and proceed there. The procession was formed under the direction of Governor Curtin and Gen. Crawford, and, preceded by the Iron City band, proceeded to Lafayette Hall to discuss the good things prepared for the occasion. On arriving there the tables were found extending the full length of the hall, which was tastefully decorated with flags and evergreens. The banquet was prepared by Mr. McGinly, which fact of itself would be a sufficient guarantee of its superior excellence. The tables were fairly groaning beneath the weight of substantials, which were discussed with a relish highly creditable to the caterer.

After this most excellent collation had been despatched, the Chairman of the Convention, Governor Curtin, who occupied the head of the center table, called upon the Committee on Toasts for their report. Major J. C. Hervey, of the First Regiment, read the usual toasts to the President, the Governor, the memory of Washington, and the army and navy. A response to the last toast was expected from General Crawford, but he was not present. Other toasts were then read as follows:

Fifth—The volunteers during the late war. They acknowledge no superiors, and claim to have no rivals. [Three cheers.]

Sixth—The Pennsylvania Reserve Corps. Modesty forbids us to say anything of ourselves. [Cheers.]

Gen. Wm. McCandless responded, humorously at first, and in concluding alluded in a pathetic manner to General George A. McCall, at one time commander of the Reserves, and whose death, at his home in this State, was announced but a few months ago.

Seventh—To the memory of those of our comrades who have fallen. Ever green be the laurels they have won—ever fresh the memory they bequeathed to their country.

This sentiment was drank in silence, and standing. No response.

Eighth—A. G. Curtin, His wisdom conceived, his energy inaugurated, and his patriotism accomplished the great act of Pennsylvania in creating the Pennsylvania Reserve Corps.

Governor Curtin responded in a patriotic and eloquent address, in which he paid a high tribute to the memory of the brave men who fell during the rebellion, and especially to those who had been members of the Reserve Corps, which he greatly eulogised. He had been so active in the creation and organization of the Corps that he imagined himself a member of it, and certainly felt as though he was one of it. He referred to his election as President of the Association, which occurred during his visit to Europe, and said that no incident of his life had afforded him more pleasure. He gave a complete and extended history of the Reserve Corps from its organization to the close of the war, at the conclusion of which he said that in more than one battle it had saved the entire army from defeat. He alluded to the pledges to protect the widows and children of deceased soldiers, and was sorry to say that they had not been faithfully kept. On his return from Europe he was grieved and astonished to see so many of our brave defenders, who have lost an arm or a limb in the service, seated upon the sidewalks, grinding an organ to procure from public charity a mite sufficient to keep life in their bodies. He considered each cripple so employed a lasting monument against the pledges we had made. It was a deep disgrace, and he hoped that no man would be helped or elevated to office, upon any consideration, who would not pledge himself to the fulfillment of the promised duty to our maimed soldiers. In conclusion, he referred to the manner in which European countries cared for their disabled soldiers, and hoped that this great and glorious nation would emulate their example in that respect. His remarks were listened to with careful attention, and at the conclusion he was greeted with long and loud applause.

Ninth—The survivors of the War of 1812 and of the Mexican War. We honor and revere them.

Tenth—The Ladies. God bless them.

This sentiment was replied to by Col. R. Biddle Roberts, in a witty and humorous vein. His remarks were received with roars of laughter and applause. The Colonel concluded by paying an eloquent tribute to the memory of Gen. Reynolds, killed at Gettysburg.

Eleventh—The resident committee of Pittsburgh. To-day we have drank from the same canteen.

The reply to this toast came from Dr. Donnelly, who gave an interesting account of the services of the Medical Corps of the Reserves.

Gen. W. H. Ent gave the sentiment, The artillery arm of the service.

Governor Curtin proposed "the health of Major General Mead and Major General Ord," which was greeted with three cheers.

"The Signal Corps of the Pennsylvania Reserves," was replied to by Major Morril, and Major Hoyt made some brief remarks in reply to "the Commissary Department."

Gov. Curtin was again called upon and addressed the Association at considerable length, in an appropriate and feeling manner, after which the Association adjourned to meet at Westchester, Pa, on Tuesday following the 30th of May next.

La Rue's Minstrels.

To-night this celebrated troupe of Minstrels will commence at the New Opera House. It is the unanimous verdict of all who have witnessed the performances of the Carnivals that they are the superiors of all troupe in minstrelsy. The Rochester Union says: "The principal members of this company came here unheralded and unknown, but they at once established themselves as prime favorites by their intrinsic talents alone. Reeve, Weish, Collins, Powers and West, the comedians, have seized upon a vein of popularity that will not soon be forgotten, while the quartette, Hanmer, Wheaton, Tyrril and Holmes, have gained the reputation of artists in every sense of the word. Last night the programme was made up of many vocal and orchestral gems, interspersed with brilliant scintillations of wit from the opposite ends of the circle, and followed in the second part by burlesques and travesties, of great merit and originality. The fortunate possessor of the number drawing the $50 in greenbacks was Captain Mike J. Mahar, No. 29 Exehange street, and Mr. Barry, State street, received the second gift of $25 in greenbacks. There will be another change in the programme to-night, and the same amount of greenbacks will be presented to the audience."

Found Drowned.

On Saturday morning between eight and nine o'clock the body of an unknown man was discovered floating in the Ohio river near the Manchester ferry landing, by William Correy, mate of the steamboat Coal Hill. It was immediately drawn ashore and Coroner Clawson notified. A jury was impannelled, after which the inquest was adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning. The deceased wore dark pants and vest, white shirt, brown woolen undershirt, and had on one boot. Nothing was found upon his person by which he could be identified, but Coroner Clawson has a necktie, found upon the person of the deceased, which may lead to his recognition.

Frightful Runaway.

Saturday evening, between eight and nine o'clock, Mr. A. M. Voight, of the firm of Voight, Mahood & Co., Liberty street, was returning from the country in a buggy, accompanied by a lady, and when on Federal street, near the Diamond, Allegheny, the horse took fright and ran away. The buggy was turned over, throwing the occupants to the ground, only slightly injuring them, however, and the shaft became detached, with which the horse ran down Federal street and across the Suspension bridge at a fearful pace. He proceeded to Penn street and up Penn to the corner of Hand, when in attempting to pass a street car going the same direction, he ran against an approaching one from the opposite direction with such force as to knock him down. He fell in such a manner as to break his spine, and was shot. The horse and buggy belonged to Mr. Thomas Dain, livery stable keeper, on Penn street, near Canal.

A Matter of Interest.

In visiting the various offices, each agent claims his to be the best, and it sometimes appears hard for buyers to make a choice. But there is one thing certain by paying a visit to the Weed office, 112 Grant street, those wanting to buy can see new machines of other makes, at less than half-price, which have been taken in part pay for the Weed Machine.

Still another evidence of the superiority is, the Weed has compelled other machines to be taken back by the dozen, which are considered first class machines, and in no case has there been a Weed Machine returned. Those in want of a good machine will do well to call on the agent, Maj. R. H. Long, 112 Grant staeet, and see for themselves.

The Weed does not take fits or spells when you want to sew.

But larger, by hundreds multiplied into millions, than the doomed band who rode to swift destruction, in Tennyson's poem, is the great cavalcade of unhappy men who are rushing to untimely graves, followed by the gaunt spectre Dyspepsia. This is all wrong, and should cease. Plantation Bitters, the great Stomach Pain Killer, cures Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Headache, Vertigo, Dullness, and all symptoms of kindred character, as if by magic. For Languor, Lassitude, Great Weakness and Mental Depression, they have a most wonderful effect.
